POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

There are many abnormal and illogical developments in wartime, excused on the grounds of national emergency, but one of the strangest and most dangerous political phenomena of World War II has been the growing disposition in Washington to penalize management for the misdeeds of labor, or the blundering of public officialdom.

When the coal miners went on strike, for example, the government, instead of slapping John L. Lewis in the bastile, stepped in and took over the management of the mines although the mine owners were not quarreling with anybody and were in no sense responsible for the work stoppage.

There have been many other shameful incidents of this kind, where the government either took over an industry, or threatened to take over, when the actual culprits were recalcitrant workers, or vacillating government officials. And because the war must go on at all costs, business men have swallowed their vexation and made little complaint, while the public has looked on in bewilderment.

A new situation of this same order seems to be developing currently, with little being done to prevent it. A union spokesman has told the United States Senate that 1,100,000 railroad workers are prepared to strike for an 8-cents an hour wage increase if they can't get it any other way—and Washington officialdom is quoted as saying the only thing the government can do, in such an event, is to take over the railroads.

But the illogic of that is that the wage raise was recommended by a special emergency board and has been agreed to by railroad management. The rail workers' quarrel is with Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, who disapproved the raise and recommended an alternative proposal which was unacceptable to the union men.

Admittedly, a rail strike at this time, which would paralyze the nation's war effort, is unthinkable and can't be permitted, but if the government can resolve the controversy, why can't it find a solution before it becomes necessary to take them over?

In the recent coal mine dispute, the government, after taking over the mines, acceded to Lewis' demands—and gave the miners what they had been asking all along. Why, then, was it necessary to permit a serious work stoppage to develop? Why was it necessary to take over the mines before reaching a decision? Why couldn't the decision have been rendered before the crisis developed?

And in the current railroad case the same questions can be asked—in fact, are being asked by a wondering public.

If the rail workers are entitled to a raise, and are going to get it anyway, why force them to go on strike to get it? If they are not entitled to it, then why hasn't someone in Washington the gumption to say it—flatly and unequivocally? Why is it necessary for the government to take over the railroads to settle a controversy in which the railroads are not a party to the dispute?

America is wondering — and the American people may decide to take over the government, and put in a new crew to operate it, if Washington doesn't come up with some intelligent answers!

Chest Campaign Is 9.3 Per Cent Over Quota

The Community Council met recently at the home of the president, Mrs. Ralph H. Hyde, to hear the final report on the War and Community Chest drive, of which Mrs. G. E. Jeffers was manager.

A total of $6,012.54 was subscribed which the secretary-treasurer, Ethan Lanphear, was authorized to allocate as follows:

Supplies and printing, $65.98; sent to the War Chest fund, 58 per cent of total, $3460.90; budgeted for local organizations and agencies, $2300.00; placed in reserve for emergencies, $186.66.

As the quota set was $5500 it was over-subscribed by $512.54 or 9.3 per cent.

Mrs. Jeffers was given a vote of thanks by the council for her untiring efforts in furthering the campaign.

AN AMERICAN'S THANKSGIVING PRAYER

"God, make me worthy of this day,
This house, abundant food, my work, my play,
The safety of these hills, this busy street,
And friendliness of neighbors as we meet.
For fredom to enjoy outspoken thought
Make my heart yearn to thank Thee as I ought.
For birds that soar unharmed through planeless skies,
For rest, and lack of fear in children's eyes,
For wide horizons without angered foe—
Help me to manifest the love I owe,
While bombs are plowing foreign cherished sod
Make me deserve AMERICA, O God."

President Willard Rose of the host club introduced Campbell's president, Willard H. Van Dyke, who in turn presented the members of his club.

Prentiss Brown was the days chairman.

This week, Rev. D. H. Baldwin acting as chairman, spoke on Thanksgiving taking as his theme "color and music," with their invisible but patent beneficial effects upon the individual as some of the reasons for thanks.

He spoke of things all around us for which we are not responsible, but from which we receive benefits, as time, space, color and tone.

Access to good books should be another cause for giving thanks, and more good reading should be enjoyed.

Earl King of San Jose was a visitor.

Next Tuesday the program that had been announced for this week will be given, "Christmas Seal Sales" with films, and Martin Walsh local chairman of sales, will preside.

THANKSGIVING

Once again that day has come which is set aside by Presidential proclamation as a time of giving thanks for the good things which we as individuals and as a nation have experienced in the past year.

On this day of thanksgiving in 1943, we find that even in the midst of a great world war we can still find much for which to be grateful. Our troops and the troops of our allies surge forward toward victory. The defeat of the enemies of humanity is now but a matter of time—and time is running out. The four greatest nations in the world have found a basis for agreement—and are anxious to remain in agreement. Yes, for these things, and for many others, we give thanks.

Centuries ago, in 1621, the Pilgrims paused in their struggle against the wilderness to give thanks for the success of their crops which would sustain them through the winter. Clinging to the edge of a vast unknown, they found new courage and strength in bowing their heads and lifting their hearts in praise to the Giver of all good.

Since that time a day of thanksgiving was celebrated intermittently until it finally became a definite part of our national life.

But thanksgiving should extend beyond a single day—beyond a single nation. It should span the year and encircle the earth. Then the thoughts of men would turn more from the narrowness of hatred, bitterness and complaint. The gallant glow of good will and fellowship would bathe the world in light. When men seek the good in life it is amazing how much they find.

In observing this day we should be mindful of the plight of those still living under the yoke of the oppressors. Let this not depress us, but let it spur us on to "see this thing through" as quickly as possible so that they too may soon have occasion to join with us in rejoicing and thanksgiving.

THROTTLING OIL FLOW

The American people are confused. They cannot understand a national price policy for crude oil which discourages prospecting for new oil reserves, in the face of growing gasoline and fuel oil shortage, and stricter rationing. Such a policy slows down the mobility of this nation like a steady drag on a mighty fly wheel.

Are the economic doctors who control the flow of oil, determined to keep their patient in bed regardless of his ability to be more productive than ever, with the proper stimulant? It's a remarkable situation when you stop to think about it.

NOT IN THE CARDS

The life of a castaway is not what it used to be. In fact, if improvements in life-raft equipment continue to be made it will soon be downright comfortable.

The latest addition to this equipment is—playing cards! Now, we don't begrudge the men a little quiet game of poker or pinochle while they're drifting around, but cards do pose a weighty problem.

How can they bother to look out for passing ships when they are deeply engrossed in this "indoor" sport? Then too, instead of waving wildly at a passing vessel, the boys may be tempted to say, "Let's pass this one up so we can finish the game."

Furthermore, who wants to be rescued when he's holding four aces or a royal flush? Yes, friends, it's not "in the cards" to expect the boys to submit to a rescue without a struggle.

CRUSADE FOR WORLD FREE PRESS

Throughout the world, today, thoughtful men and women are searching for a formula for world peace—a means of saving mankind, in the future, from the constantly recurring carnage and bloodshed which have taken such a fearful human toll in the past.

No one formula, perhaps, can achieve that end. There are many causes of war—and it will take many remedies to eradicate them. The educator will say, if all men are given learning—better minds and greater equality of opportunity—then, possibly, wars can be prevented. The economist will say, when men of all Nations can have a fairer share of the world's goods, then, perhaps, wars will cease. The statesman will say, when men prize liberty more than all else, and are zealous in defending their countries against the selfish few and the dictators who would exploit them, then, probably, we can have a peaceful community of Nations. And the minister will say, when men live by the Golden Rule, no Nation will make war on another!

There is merit in each of those solutions. But none by itself—except, perhaps, universal acceptance of the Golden Rule—would be adequate. Our world is a complex world. And the answer to its greatest problem, the problem of war, is necessarily complex, too. But we are inclined to think that Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, hit on a common denominator recently when he strongly urged a crusade for guarantees in future peace treaties of a world-wide free press.

A world free press would not necessarily prevent war. But it would undoubtedly be a tremendous aid in that direction—for education, and religion, and a wholesome economy, and honest relations between Nations, would all be greatly aided thereby. Light conquers darkness. And where there is a free press, there is light—a light that beckons to all free men. Where freedom of the press has been suppressed, dictatorship and war have been quick aftermaths. But the torch of liberty has remained lighted in the lands where a free press endured. A world-wide free press may not be a cure-all for war, but it would certainly be a grand beginning—and it is to be hoped that the men at the peace table make it a No. 1 objective.

WARTIME INVESTMENTS

The lure of surplus money in the public's pockets is proving an irresistable temptation to shady financial operators. Not since the "bull market" days of 1929 have the purveyors of worthless securities been as active with schemes to exchange fancy, engraved pieces of paper for currency.

Only recently, the California Division of Corporations found it necessary to issue Desist and Restrain Orders against six firms. All six operated as Canadian corporations in an effort to escape the "blue sky" provisions of California law governing the sale of securities. And in each case, the pattern of their operations followed a set design.

First, the confidence of intended victims was wooed by a weekly financial publication in which information was given concerning well-known securities. Subscription rates were quoted, but if the recipient did not subscribe, the paper was sent regardless. Subsequent issues touted speculative or worthless securities in which the publication's promoter were secretly interested. And finally telegrams and long distance telephone calls were made to high pressure the victims into buying the worthless stocks.

If you get literature of this type, consult your banker or Better Business Bureau before buying the securities offered. Or better still, if you have any surplus money, invest it in War Bonds. The U. S. A. is still the best investment in the world.

WRITE RIGHT!

This is a war of words—as well as of weapons. And not the least potent are the words the boys — and girls—receive from home—in letters.

Letters are magic for morale, especially if they are the right kind of letters. One newspaperman who had talked with many soldiers described the "right kind" of a letter as one that assures them that all is well at home, that the folks are proud of them—without putting it on too thickly, and that tells them some of the chatty details of doings in the home town.

So anxious are our fighting men for mail that many have said they would rather get bad news than not get a letter at all. But unless it has to be told, we should forget troubles at home when writing them.

Snapshots of the family, the girl friend, the pet dog, always give the touch of home. Clippings from the home town paper, especially about the boys themselves, also are sure-fire "uplifters." Shorter letters written more often are generally more desired than "book-length" compositions that come only occasionally. So, write often! And when you do, write right!

RUSSIANS STUDY GERMAN

More significant, perhaps, than all the news of smashing Red Army advances is the brief dispatch which seeped out a few days ago that Russian troops are studying the German language!

If Hitler's terror campaign, designed to whip up the German war effort, needs a new not of stark realism, we recommend that item. For if there is one thing that will make a Nazi shiver in his boots more than the Russian winter, it is the thought of Soviet troops sweeping into the Rhineland.

Russians studying German! That's the kind of terror story that should even make that arch-propagandist, Joe Goebbels, have a night-mare.

Folies Bergere Opens in San Francisco Tuesday

Scores of the world's most gorgeous girls, a huge company of famed vaudeville stars, new settings, costumes, music, and lights, have been blended together for the world premiere engagement of the Folies Bergere of 1944 which opens at Winterland in San Francisco, Tuesday, November 30.

Clifford C. Fisher, impressario of the Folies and world-famous showman, has been in San Francisco for weeks to advise in the transformation of Winterland, which has housed the dazzling Ice Follies, from its Arctic atmosphere to scenes of French gayety.

Fischer's great new two-and-a-half hour show, with some of the best known names in vaudeville and scores of beauties in a cast of 120, will be presented nightly on the entire floor surface of Winterland, backed by a huge stage. The new show will present twelve giant scenes.

Some of the best known stars of vaudeville who will frolic through the hours of French gayety are:

Malcia, saucy little dancer who appeared in the Folies Bergere at Treasure Island in 1939; Barto and Mann, stars for three years in the "Hellzapoppin" show; the Cristiani's, world famous exhibition riders; the Shyrettos and their daring feats on one-wheel bicycles; Willie, West and McGinty, clown carpenters; Truzzi, sensational juggler; Jean Devereaux, the spinning ballerina; Ardelty, daring trapeze artist; Monroe and Grant, performers on the trampeline; Rollo and Verna Picket and their tap dancing on stilts; and Harry Ritley, who stacks seven tables in the air and stands on them.

Tickets for the Folies Bergere are now on sale at Winterland, Post and Steiner streets, San Francisco, (15) and at Sherman Clay box offices in San Francisco and Oakland.

"Jane Eyre" In San Jose Dec. 5

Two of America's most beloved stars, Sylvia Sidney and Luther Adler, are co-starred in the stage presentation of Charlotte Bronte's famous novel "Jane Eyre," which comes to the civic auditorium, San Jose, for a single performance on Sunday evening, Dec. 5.

"Jane Eyre"is a role which has always fascinated great actresses. Miss C. C. Wemyss gave the part its first performance with John Gilbert as Rochester, in 1850. The great Laura Keene appeared as "Jane" in 1856, and then such famous stars as Charlotte Cushman, the inimitable Clara Morris, Charlotte Thompson, Maggie Mitchell Eugenia Blair in the Grand Opera House in Boston in 1897. Five years ago Katherine Hepburn played the role, and the present revival with Sylvia Sidney and Luther Adler is rated as one of the best in the stage history of the Bronte work.

Roy G. Archibald is one of four men appointed from San Jose on a state Knight's Templar committee to assist with the establishment of work shops in military hospitals in California, where injured war veterans may be taught various arts and crafts. Knights Templar of California are assisting the Red Cross with the project which is designed to keep wounded men occupied during convalescence and perhaps start them on a new occupation or hobby. Eighteen arts and crafts will be taught.

NEWS OF LATEST ARRIVALS

"Long, Long Ago" by Alexander Woolcott.

This is the first and only book of Mr. Woolcott's own writing since his "While Rome Burns." It contains stories, sketches, anecdotes, and personalities from the Town Crier's greatest popularity. This book does not differ from its predecessor a great deal. There are lengthy pieces about events, institutions, and specially people that had aroused the author's enthusiasm, touched his heart or his sense of humor, or, on occasion, kindled his formidable wrath. This is Woollcott speaking— in the best-known and best-loved voice in America.

"Captain Ebony" by Hamilton Cochran.

Both as entertainment and exciting historical fact, this novel is a treasure. Its background of slave ships upon the high seas is a masterpiece of research made to read like eye-witness reporting. Mr. Cochran's powerful recreation of a brutal era is raw red meat for the masculine palate, while women readers will thrill to its stormy romance as well as to its breath-taking action scenes.

"The Mothers" by Vardis Fisher.

This author needs no introduction to you readers. What, with "Children of God," "The City of Illusion" and "Darkness and the Deep" such glorious literary successes Mr. Fisher has come to be a familiar and well loved author. In this, his latest, he brings a story of pioneer suffering and endurance, of hardships invited and overcome, of dangers faced without whimpering, of boys calmly accepting the burdens of men, and of women self-sacrificing and triumphant. The background of the book is the Donner Party, here freshly interpreted. It was the mothers of the group—hence the title—who saved it from complete disaster. This book is not merely the story of a few score emigrants to the West; it is in essence a paean to motherhood, which in every crisis thinks not of itself but of the race.

"The Sentimentalist" by Frances Winwar.

In this novel the author of previous successes such as "Poor Splendid Wings" and "Oscar Wilde and the Yellow Nineties" has created a memorable character in Donald Harlan—a complex character capable of exciting many diverse emotions. When he enters the story he is a young Tammany lawyer of dubious past and uncertain future. He falls in love with a beautiful girl many years his junior and their years together entail the plot. Miss Winwar has brought delicacy, understanding and marked distinction into this, her latest great work.

Campbell Ties Los Gatos In Game Friday

The football season for the Santa Clara Valley League ended Friday with an upset in standings that left the Mt. View and Los Gatos teams tied for first place.

Before their games Fremont and Los Gatos had claims to the championship, but Santa Clara's defeat of Fremont and Campbell's tie score of 0-0 with Los Gatos changed the picture.

The latter game was full of excitement with a number of spectacular moments, but in none of which were the players able to continue to a touchdown.

The Cats best chance was in the first quarter when they were on the Buccaneers seven-yard line, but made only three yards in four plays.

The Campbell team was within scoring distance twice in the last two quarters when they advanced to the Cats ten yard line but were held for downs.

Anderson to be On the Air Sunday

Congressman Jack Anderson, representing the Eighth California District in Washington, believes the War Department should remain in control of the Japanese camp at Tulelake, and to this end pledges his all-out support. This the Congressman will reveal Sunday night, Nov. 28, between 9:15 and 9:30 over station KQW, when he discusses the entire Tulelake issue with his constituents.

"My best efforts in the Congress, and those of my colleagues on the Pacific Coast," said Anderson, "will be pledged to a firm and vigorous policy in the solution of this complex problem. I am convinced that Tulelake definitely should continue under Army control, and I am sure the Congress will take strong actions to prevent a recurrence of the outbreak there."

Niel Sellars of Campbell will be installed Dec. 1, as vice-president of the Agnews hospital chapter of the California State Employes association.

Heavens to Betsy...wouldn't it be awesome if your water heater quit you cold? Here are four ways, however, to pamper the old dear to keep him happily and faithfully yours for a long time.

1. CUT DOWN ON WASTEFUL USE OF HOT WATER. Think before you draw even a quart or two of hot water. Was it necessary? Make it snappy when you take a shower. Rinse dishes in a pan...NOT under a running faucet. Use less hot water for a tub bath.

2. DRAIN YOUR WATER HEATER REGULARLY. To drain, open the valve on your heater and run water into a bucket until clear of sediment. That's all.

3. KEEP YOUR WATER HEATER CLEAN. Brush off the burner occasionly.

4. DO NOT HEAT WATER TOO HOT! If your water heater has an adjustable thermostat, set it to 120 degress. It will be easier on your plumbing, too. Remember call your plumber or repair man only when absolutely necessary. They are busy people these days.
